

Simon McRay
by Matthew Terry

I think, I've decided, just yesterday,
That my name will no longer be Simon McRay.
That name, I've decided, is so obsolete,
That I have decided to that name, delete.
I need a very awesome name,
Like Jacob or Jake, or possibly Graeme.
Maybe I'll even aim quite a bit higher,
And pick a name like Steven Dan Pyer.
I won't stop there, I'm far from done.
I need a name unlike anyone.
Steven Dan Pyer's not an terrible name,
But I think I need one that's a little less tame
I'm thinking of Schneuzich, or maybe Von Shnine
Because both of those names sound incredibly fine.
I can't decide, I'm not quite sure,
Which name to pick, maybe Blonnburr?
This job is hard, I'm sure you see.
Picking a name is not easy.
There are so many names I could certainly choose,
Like Spitster, or Al, or Horatio Hoooz.
But Horatio Hoooz is only 12 letters,
I NEED MORE, like my friend, Mr. Halomofettters!
I could be Fitzgerald or Will,
Schnauzer or Blaine,
Theodore, Devereaux, Bartholomew, Hubert, or Blaine!
There's Maximilian, Rosencrantz, or - TOO MANY NAMES!!!!
I've made my choice.
I really have.
Steven Dan Pyer is a very nice name,
But my cousin, his name, why it's the very same.
Blonnburr I don't actually like
The name itself was a definite strike.
Though other names seemed quite nice,
I never really thought of them twice.
If I want a name unique to me,
Why then, it's very plain to see.
The name I pick, the one I choose
Are you ready to hear the real big news?
The name you can call me everyday,
Is none other than, why, Simon McCray.
Because though a long name would be quite interesting,
I just now remembered one little thing.
Just one you see,
Not two or three.
Just one,
And then we're done.
A name is what you make it,
Whether good or bad, it'll always fit.
So be careful how you use your name,
For good, or bad, or even fame.
Because that's how you'll be known,
Not by your car or xylophone.
So I decided, just today,
I'll keep my name, Simon McRay.
